Johnson & Johnson is committed to increasing our purchases from RSPO physical supply chains with an ambition to purchase at least 50% of our volumes from RSPO physical supply chains by year-end 2025. For volumes we are unable to purchase from RSPO physical models, we will cover these gaps with RSPO Credits. Currently, not within the scope of this commitment is palm oil volumes used by external contract manufacturers volumes where Johnson & Johnson does not directly negotiate the purchase of raw material ingredients.

Given the challenges faced by the global vegetable oil markets and the limited availability of CSPKO Credits, Johnson & Johnson is still working to identify available RSPO Credits to cover the gap for our 2021 volumes.

We support the inclusion and livelihood of independent, smallholder palm oil farmers through the funding of partnerships and projects in the regions connected with our upstream supply chain. More details on the partnerships and projects are detailed in subsequent responses.
