Challenges:

-The approval of the RACP project, especially we facilitated, takes time. Since the approval becomes a precondition for certification, this has become a problem for company who process their certification.

-There is no clear regulation-based guidance for the width of river buffer in Indonesia, yet. This guidance is important for the companies to follow to make sure inline with the RSPO requirement and government regulation.

Efforts to resolve:

-FFI is actively involved in and provide inputs to the BHCVWG to improve the RACP process and mechanism

-FFI is actively involved in the Sub-Group of Riparian under the P and C Task Force in Indonesia
