1. Operational Profile

1.1 What are the main activities of your organisation?

We aspire for an Indonesia where land and seascapes are managed sustainably and benefit the communities that depend on them. We are committed to working with farmers, including younger generations, to protect nature. Our mission is to improve public policies and strengthen civil society through innovative research, policy analysis, technology, and alliance-building to sustainably manage Indonesia's natural resources and agricultural production system, throughout the life cycle of products. Kaleka's thematic strengths are in sustainable sourcing, conservation and restoration, agrifood systems, community development, and environmental and social governance.

At the heart of Kaleka's approach, is the concept of Collaborative, Action Research. Before commencing any work, we work with our partners, including the government at the national and sub-national levels, civil society organizations, producer, manufacturing and consumer-facing companies, universities, farmers, and local communities, to identify their priorities. Through researching best practices in science, while incorporating local and indigenous knowledge, we test, implement, evaluate, and refine innovations. This approach ensures the acceptability and relevance of interventions to local partners while also allowing us to scale nationally. We aim to achieve our vision and mission through our four strategic initiatives: Mosaik Initiative, Wewowo Lestari, Kolibri Alliance, and TaniBaik.

The Mosaik Initiative is an ambitious landscape initiative in Kalimantan, Indonesia, that works to protect and regenerate nature in a major commodity-producing region. The initiative supports local and indigenous communities to adopt regenerative agriculture, restore degraded lands, and protect their existing forests, through providing them incentives. By protecting and restoring critical ecosystems across the landscape, the initiative ensures that commodities intended for global markets such as palm oil and timber are produced sustainably and responsibly. The Mosaik Initiative has two main flagship programs for protecting and restoring ecosystems: jurisdictional approaches and district-wide, sustainable village development programs. The jurisdictional approach to certification seeks to apply the principles and criteria of a supply chain certification scheme, such as Indonesian Sustainable Palm Oil (ISPO) or Roundtable for Sustainable Palm Oil (RSPO), to all producers of that commodity within a governmental, administrative area, such as a state or district. Sustainable Village Development is the district-wide village development program to invite all communities to work together to achieve a common dream of a prosperous society while ensuring that both nature and the environment are preserved. As part of the program, villages will be provided with support for improving their livelihoods in four main areas: smallholder certification, restoration, community forestry, and regenerative agriculture.

In 2021, Kaleka launched a jurisdictional approach to sustainability in Fakfak called Wewowo Lestari, which means working together to preserve forest and natural resources and indigenous communities. A multi-stakeholder platform was established, consisting of government representatives, customary leaders, producer and supply chain companies, and civil society organizations. The goals of Wewowo Lestari are to recognize indigenous people's rights, protect forests and nature, and create markets for local commodities.

The Kolibri Alliance was recently established in 2021 after six organizations joined forces to build a network of non-government organizations (NGOs) in five provinces to build climate resilience in the agricultural sector. Through Tani Baik, we aim to build a community where farmers, including young farmers, can meet and share information and knowledge.

1.2 What activities has your organisation undertaken to publicise programmes to support the RSPO, RSPO certification, the uptake of RSPO-certified sustainable palm oil and oil palm products, or to support good standing RSPO members during the reporting period?

Kaleka facilitates RSPO and ISPO certification in 3 districts (Kotawaringin Barat, Seruyan, Sukamara) in Central Kalimantan Province and 1 district (Ketapang) in West Kalimantan Province. The details are as follows: 3,781 farmers with an area of 8,969 ha for RSPO certification, and 3,071 farmers with an area of 6,451 ha for ISPO certification. This figure shows an increase from 2022 when the number of certified farmers was 1,546 farmers and the certified land area was 3,957 ha.

Kaleka is developing a multistakeholder platform to facilitate the jurisdictional certification process in the Kotawaringin Barat, Seruyan, and Sukamara districts of Central Kalimantan Province, the Ketapang District of West Kalimantan Province as well as the Fakfak District of West Papua Province. These five districts already have a jurisdiction certification working group that is legalized by a Regent Decree. Secretariats for the five working groups have also been operationalized. The Kotawaringin Barat, Sukamara, & Ketapang jurisdictional certification working groups consist of 4 sub-working groups while the Seruyan and Fakfak working groups consist of 3 sub-working groups. Each sub-working group has its own work focus covering efforts to reduce deforestation, protect high conservation value areas and high carbon stock areas, prevent conflict, and empower farmers, indigenous peoples, and local communities. The working groups have been operationalized and supported the issuance of local regulations as the basis for long-term implementation.
